

FOREIGN LANGUAGES

The Foreign Languages majors at Stonehill give students a means of breaking through the barrier of a single speech and culture pattern while also providing an encounter with great literature, cultural traditions and social models. They do so in small classes and with supportive faculty.

We offer three majors: Foreign Languages (student studies two of the following languages: Chinese, French, German, Italian, Spanish), French and Spanish.

The program emphasizes communication, culture, connection, community and comparison. That focus can be seen in our international internships and study abroad programs, which require community engagement, whether it be joining a local soccer club or volunteering in a local nursing home.
