

INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS

An International Business degree from Stonehill's AACSB-accredited* Business Administration Department gives students the tools to help businesses and organizations navigate the complexities of globalization and adapt to sweeping ethnographic shifts here in the United States.

Building on Stonehill's liberal arts foundation, students in the major are able to supplement the Business core with courses outside of the Business Department, such as:

- Cultural Anthropology
- World History
- International Economics
- International Organizations and State Building

It is a synergistic collaboration of great benefit to International Business graduates entering the marketplace or seeking graduate school placement.

RESEARCH OPPORTUNITIES

Stonehill Undergraduate Research Experience

This is an opportunity for students who have completed their first year at Stonehill to perform significant, publishable, full-time research under the guidance of and in collaboration with an experienced faculty researcher.

Recent example

International Business major Myron Inglis '14 worked with Professor Jennifer Swanson of the Business Administration Department on "An Exploration of the Relationship Between Microfinance and Government Policies." Their research was focused on determining what role the government plays in supporting microfinance.

*Accreditation by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business is the benchmark of quality for business education worldwide. Stonehill is one of only 42 undergraduate institutions worldwide that have earned the prestigious AACSB accreditation of their business program.
