

MANAGEMENT

Building on the strong core curriculum of Stonehill's AACSB-accredited* Business Administration Department, Management majors study human resources management along with managerial negotiations and decision making. They then are able to select an additional four courses in the major that are closely tailored to their personal career path.

Because of the general nature of the concentration, it not only meets the needs of students seeking a management career but also serves those students who have yet to select a career direction and are primarily interested in a broad-based exposure to business administration.
