

Sabbaticals during the 2018-2019 academic year

Antonio Barbagallo, Professor of Languages, Literatures, and Cultures

Spring 2019

Project: Los dos Quijotes: un auton

Nicole M. Capezza, Assistant Professor of Psychology

Spring 2019

Project: Understanding Perceptions of Marginalized Romantic Relationships: The Impact of Race and Gender

Scott Cohen, Associate Professor of English

Spring 2019

Project: Global Modernism and Modernity, project 2: New and Old Waves

Shane J. Maddock, Professor of History

Spring 2019

Projects: Chuck Berry's America: Race, Southern Migration, and the Origins of Rock and Roll, Project 2: The Paradox of Progressive Bluegrass

Greg Maniero, Associate Professor of Biology

Fall 2018

Project: Using IL-16 as a tool to characterized CD4 from the aquatic frog, Xenopus laevis.

Constantinos Mekios, Associate Professor of Philosophy

Spring 2019

Project: Research on a topic in the philosophy of biology on which I have already published in the past. study recent cases of the application of mathematical formalisms in the context of biological experimentation.

Irvin Pan, Assistant Professor of Biology

Spring 2019

Project: "Examination of leaf development genes in three unrelated groups of carnivorous pitcher plants."

Gary Stanton, Assistant Professor of Graphic Design

Spring 2019

Project: Artistic production of a series of large mystical portraits painting created on panels. A primary photograph and hand painting will be seamlessly integrated into the final composition.